

PRIVACY POLICY

Blackhawk Law Limited is a leading Franklin firm. This policy outlines the way in which we manage the personal information we hold about our clients, potential clients, contractors and others. We, us, our and Blackhawk Law are each defined at the end of this policy.

Blackhawk Law is bound by the Privacy Act 1993 (Privacy Act).

In summary, 'personal information' is information about an identifiable individual.

Why does Blackhawk Law collect personal information?

We collect personal information in order to conduct our business, to provide and market our services and to meet our legal obligations, including (but not limited to) in relation to our anti-money laundering and sanctions compliance obligations.

Who does Blackhawk Law collect personal information about?

We collect and hold personal information about (but not limited to):

- clients, business associates and potential clients and their employees, contractors, owners and directors;
- individuals we deal with in the course of acting for clients and carrying on our business;
- suppliers and their employees and contractors;
- prospective employees, employees and contractors; and
- other people who come into contact with Blackhawk Law.

What kinds of personal information does Blackhawk Law collect?

In general, and depending upon the nature of the person's connection with Blackhawk Law, the type of personal information we collect and hold includes (but is not limited to): names, addresses, contact details, date of birth, occupations, personal preference payment details, employment history and/or details, education and qualifications, testimonials and feedback, nature of relationship to our client, evidence of source of funds (in some cases) and other information which assists us in conducting our business, providing and marketing our services and meeting our legal obligations.

In some cases, if personal information we request is not provided, it might adversely impact our ability to supply the relevant product or service or to perform our obligation.

How does Blackhawk Law collect personal information?

Except as otherwise permitted by law, we will collect personal information:

- from you directly when you provide your details to us;
- from you indirectly (through emails, forms, subscription applications, face-to-face meetings, interviews, registration and attendance at seminars, business cards, telephone conversations and through the use of the services and facilities available through our website and social media channels);

- from third parties in some instances, for example, we may use third parties to analyse traffic at our websites and social media channels, which may involve the use of cookies. In some circumstances we might collect personal information about an individual from a third party, for example, a report provided by a medical professional or an employment reference from another person; and
- from publicly available websites.

Management of personal information

We take reasonable steps to protect the security of personal information. Blackhawk Law's personnel are required to respect the confidentiality of personal information and the privacy of individuals.

We take reasonable steps to protect personal information held by us from misuse and loss and from unauthorised access, modification or disclosure, for example by use of physical security and restricted access to electronic records.

Where we no longer require your personal information we will comply with our legal obligations in respect of that information.

How might Blackhawk Law collect, hold, use and disclose your personal information?

In general, we collect, hold, use and disclose your personal information for the following purposes:

- to conduct our business;
- to provide and market our services to you;
- to provide joint marketing initiatives with other service providers;
- to engage third parties on your behalf;
